LACBA and WLALA Call on Law Firms to Commit to Gender Equity
Joint Task Force on the Retention and Promotion of Women Lawyers Issues Call to Action

Los Angeles – May 19, 2021: The Women Lawyers Association of Los Angeles and the Los Angeles County Bar Association are calling on the legal industry to redouble its commitment to programs and policies that aim to retain and advance women lawyers.

The Call to Action 2021 comes out of the LACBA-WLALA Joint Task Force on the Retention and Promotion of Women Lawyers and includes measures to promote the advancement of women, institutionalize gender parity, and invest in mentorship, professional development, and training.

The task force's recommendations include:

- Adopt the Mansfield Rule which requires firms to “consider at least 30 percent women, LGBTQ+, and attorneys of color for all leadership and governance roles, senior lawyer hiring, and equity partner/leader promotions.”
- Create sponsorship programs that pair senior partners with senior associates, counsel and junior partners to help them develop individualized business plans and open doors with clients.
- Ensure accountability by maintaining current and accurate data on hiring, training, opportunities, promotions, compensation, and departure by gender, race and ethnicity, LGBTQ+, and disability.
- Increase the number of women equity and non-equity partners by 25 percent over the next five years to reflect that women now represent the majority of law school graduates.
- Offer flexible work schedules—especially during the Covid-19 pandemic—and training for all employees to root out biases and spotlight harassment.

As part of the campaign, the LACBA-WLALA Joint Task Force on the Retention and Promotion of Women Lawyers will present a panel on the impact of COVID-19 on the women workforce on Thursday, May 27,

2021. Entitled, “She-cession”: Combatting the Crisis of Women Leaving the Workforce, the program includes speakers from the University of Southern California and the University of Arkansas discussing the latest economic data and underlying causes of gender disparity caused by the global pandemic. Launched in 2007, the Joint Task Force addresses the need to increase the number of women in partnership and leadership positions in major law firms. The Call to Action 2021 helps institutionalize many policies and structures to make that goal possible, such as parental leave policies, flexible work schedules, partnership equity, and implicit bias trainings.

“We need firms to step up and take the lead in championing diversity in the field of law,” said Patricia Egan Daehnke and Roxanne M. Wilson, Co-Chairs of LACBA’s President’s Advisory Committee on Women in the Legal Profession. Jessica Kronstadt, President of WLALA added, “The Call to Action 2021 contains measurable goals that will have long-lasting impacts in retainment and advancement of women lawyers at all stages of their careers. Importantly, these policies will build a foundation for tomorrow’s leaders to have the skills and support they need to succeed. We urge law firms to set an example and join us in this important work.”
